Guest Speaker – Pooja Jeeva | Product Marketing and Investor Relations

Laser Photonics

I'm pleased to acknowledge Pooja Jeeva for her recent visit as a guest speaker in my university sales classes within the Centurion Sales Program at Stetson University.

Pooja joined our students to share her perspective as a marketing professional, and her session provided a valuable bridge between academic concepts and real-world application. She presented material that was both relevant and accessible, helping students better understand how the principles they are learning translate into today's dynamic sales and marketing environments. Her ability to frame practical examples around core concepts made the session especially meaningful for those preparing to enter the workforce.

Throughout her time with our students, Pooja demonstrated a natural ability to engage the room. She created an interactive environment, encouraging participation, questions, and thoughtful discussion. Students were receptive to her approach and appreciated the authenticity she brought to the conversation, as well as her willingness to share personal experiences and professional insights that added depth to the session.

What stood out most was her ability to connect with students at different levels of familiarity with the topic. Whether reinforcing foundational ideas or introducing more advanced perspectives, she maintained clarity and approached the material in a way that supported student learning. This balance is not easy to achieve, and it contributed to the overall impact of her visit.

Guest speakers play an important role in enhancing classroom learning, particularly in fields like sales and marketing where industry perspective adds significant value. Pooja's visit is a great example of how practitioners can effectively contribute to an academic setting by offering insight, perspective, and real-world context.

We appreciate her time, effort, and willingness to engage with our students, and it was a pleasure to have her participate in our program.
